

Some States Take Action to help protect consumers from motor oils and transmission fluids that are potentially harmful to vehicles. They do so by ordering these products off the shelves in the state. It should be noted, however, that while products may be ordered off the shelves in one state, such potentially harmful motor oils and transmission fluids can, and often are found in other states that have not taken action to remove them.

Contact PQIA if you see any of the products listed in the table below on the shelves in any state. CONTACT US

Note: The table below also shows motor oils and transmission fluids that the Petroleum Quality Institute of America has issued Consumer Alerts on. The date in the table provides a clickable link to the alert details and images of the product.
